ORLEANS'S CONTRIBUTION.

Lord Mayor of London Urged to Return Subscription to Queen Victoria Memorial.

London, Aug. 3.—In great contrast with the favorable comments elicited here by the contribution of £5,000 to the Queen Victoria memorial fund by the delegates of the New York Chamber of Commerce, who recently visited London, is the anger with which the Duke of Orleans's contribution of £100 has been received.

The St. James's Gate terms the Duke's action "astounding impudence," and in common with the Daily Chronicle urges the Lord Mayor to reject this contribution on account of the part which the Duke of Orleans took in the caricatures of Queen Victoria, which appeared in the Paris newspapers. The same paper says the New Yorkers' gift "emphasizes in a dignified and graceful manner the feeling which we are sure is general in the United States."

Secretary of Treasury Tells of Condition of Affairs in Liberia.

Company Has Been Formed to Develop Gold Mines—Country Is Progressing.

London, Aug. 3.—A number of officials of Liberia have arrived in England for the purpose of endeavoring to procure from Great Britain the right to navigate the Magua river which separates Liberia from Sierra Leone. The delegation, which consists of Secretary of the Treasury Barclay, Chief Justice Roberts and Senator Kling, who was the Liberian commissioner to the World's Fair, have had an interview with Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, and negotiations to secure the desired right are now in progress.

Mr. Barclay, who has held his present position for about twenty years, said to a representative of the Associated Press: "Liberia is progressing well. Thanks to the firm stand of the United States and Great Britain we are not troubled with European aggression, though to tell the truth we are rather afraid of Germany as she is so patently on the look out for colonies. However, I do not think she will get a chance to appropriate our country. I understand that steps are on foot in New York for the formation of an American line to West Africa. I believe it will be an advantageous undertaking as the oil, timber and such products now used in Liberia and other West African countries come from America, but by way of England. A direct service would obviate this miscarriage of profits. Return freights are still scarce, but with the rapid development of the country's mining interests this difficulty should shortly be overcome, while gold is always plentiful. There is gold in Liberia, and a company has already been formed to develop the mines."

Financially Liberia is progressing. One hundred thousand pounds would wipe out all her debts. Considering that we have not received any financial assistance except from American colonization, Liberia's standing compares favorably with that of any West African states. We are getting little negro immigration from the United States at present. Indeed it is hard for immigrants to get work, for the natives are willing to work for $3 a month. Later there will be plenty of opportunities for those cognizant of mining matters. If American negroes would take up this branch they would have a great future on the west coast, where they can stand the climate as well as a white man. We are working slowly and steadily in the endeavor to find a common basis of government for our civilized and native population. The latter number over a million. We are endeavoring to avoid the mistake so patent in the crown colonies around us of forcing our ideas upon the natives. A gradual assimilation of customs is the only way of dealing with the problem, and how successful we have been can be judged from the fact that we have no organized police and often no serious criminal cases in six months at a time."

Outlook Is Gloomy

Efforts to End the San Francisco Strike Have Not Yet Been Successful.

If Not Settled To-Night Additional Unions May Be Called Out.

The Steel Trade Troubles—Proposed General Strike of Miners in France.

San Francisco, July 3.—Mayor Phelan's efforts to effect an amicable settlement of the labor troubles in this city have not yet been productive of any definite result. At the mayor's request the City Front Federation has agreed to let the existing conditions remain unchanged for a short time, to give him time to secure a final settlement of terms of compromise from the Employers' Association.

The Labor Council has given its executive council power to call out whatever unions it may deem necessary if the strike is not ended by to-night. The council has manifested a disposition to inaugurate a war of retaliation against employers who persist in an attitude of hostility toward unions.

The Longshoremen's Union has appointed fifty extra pickets and adopted resolutions censuring all persons who have engaged in quarrels with non-union men or the police during the strike, and calling upon all union men to do all in their power to preserve the peace.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 3.—The removal of the seat of negotiations from this city to New York at an invitation of J. P. Morgan has greatly relieved the strain upon the public, which the ineffective deliberations of the executive committee has produced.

Conference To-day.

New York, Aug. 3.—The full executive committee of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers arrived here this morning. They are to hold a conference with J. P. Morgan, President Schwab, of the United States Steel Corporation, and other officers of the big trust during the day.

Negotiations Fail.

New York, Aug. 3.—The steel conference held to-day failed to arrive at an agreement. The proposals made by J. P. Morgan, through President Schwab and Secretary Williams, of the Amalgamated Association, one week ago, are still open, but the strikers' representatives showed no inclination to accept them. The representatives of the strikers left the conference at which they have failed to agree with the announcement that they would go to meet session themselves later in the afternoon. It was admitted that there might be action at that meeting that would change the situation.

After the labor men went into session it was given up by one of their number that the proposition made by the United States Steel Corporation would not be accepted, and that there would be no further conference between the Corporation and the Amalgamated Association, unless it should be asked for by the former. It was also said that the Amalgamated representatives would probably leave for Pittsburg to-morrow morning.

The French Miners.

St. Etienne, Aug. 3.—The National Miners' Federation has sent a circular to all its members proposing a general strike in France for November 1st unless the government and the mining companies should give the miners a satisfactory solution in regard to the proposals for a week day of eight hours and a pension of two francs a day after 25 years' work.

Press Comments

London Aug. 3.—Mr. Chamberlain's declarations on behalf of the government in the House of Commons that greater severity will be used hereafter in dealing with Cape rebels, and that Boers shooting captured blacks will, if taken, be executed, compelled with the assurance that a considerable number of troops will be brought home at the end of September, are treated by the morning papers as the beginning of the third period of the war.

The Standard, the Daily Chronicle, Morning Post, Daily Telegraph, Daily Mail, Graphic, Daily Express, rejoice at the "government's resolute attitude." The Daily News, on the other hand, regards it with uneasiness and apprehension, and the Morning Leader as "the opening of an epoch of terror and crime."

Ex-Prisoner's Evidence

Sensational Story Told by Rose Gaynor at New Westminster Jail Inquiry.

Entertaining in a Cell—Warden Armstrong Temporarily Relieved From Duty.

New Westminster, Aug. 2.—George Armstrong, warden of the provincial jail here, has been temporarily relieved from duty. E. H. Johns, warden of the provincial jail at Victoria, arrived this morning to take charge of the local institution and the keys were handed over to the new superior officer at noon today. This change has been made as a direct result of the official inquiry which opened before Judge Harrison on Wednesday last.

The following is a summary of part of the evidence of the witness Rose Gaynor, before the royal commission of inquiry into the conduct of affairs at the jail, as given on Wednesday: This witness told of having seen the warden in the company of May Evans on several occasions in the store room, the bath room, an empty cell, and in the hospital, and in the chapel. She had seen them in compromising positions, and one time she heard the warden say: "Be a good girl and quit drinking whiskey, and I'll make you my wife." May Evans warden must have considered her a foot soldier, she said...

Wardens translated some letters written her in French. For six months she had been kept in the kitchen, and she had seen Gaynor in the kitchen after he (Marshall) became a guard. Mohr was said to have coined money in the jail. He had a disagreement with the prisoner, and the warden had ordered him to his post. This encouraged the prisoner. There was no discipline. On had got on well. Roberts and Mohr, two prisoners, had quarrelled, and he went to the warden to lock them both up. He did not write a report, though there was a book for the purpose. Since then he had made written reports which were ignored, for fighting. He produced a book for weeks he said it was not entered. He took no notice of the omission. He took no memo of the warden holding May in his arms, nor when he had seen Webber come out of the women's ward. He admitted it was his duty to make reports whether they were dealt with by his superiors or not. Witness made no report of this or of the chance of locks. When Fleming spoke of the key being made, the warden told him to let him know when it was finished. He asked Gaynor from the point where it was said he was good. He and a long talk with Webber, who seemed perturbed first when he caught Webber thought that witness could make use of information against the warden. He did not report the prisoner he caught coming out of the female ward because he was waiting to catch him with the key. Examination Continued.

BOYCE MUST HANG.

Friday Next the Date Fixed for His Execution—Last Hope Destroyed.

Eben L. Boyce, the condemned wife murderer and former resident in this city, will hang on August 9th. His last hope was destroyed when Judge Snell refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus on an application by Boyce's attorney on the ground that there is no law existing under which their client can be executed. This practically closes Boyce's legal battle for life, as the Supreme court has already issued a mandamus directing Judge Snell to fix the day for his execution, and Judge Hanford, of the Federal court, has refused to sign an order granting an application for a writ of habeas corpus, making it evident that he has no remedy in the higher courts. All hope of executive clemency has been cut off, an Ontario lawyer recently refused to look at a petition praying for clemency.

STOPPED BY STRIKE.

Newark, Aug. 2.—The lines of the Newark street railway and the Newark and Granville road, operated by the same company, were stopped today by a strike. The cause of the strike is not known, as neither the men nor the officials will talk. The strikers demanded 25 cents per hour for a ten-hour day and 25 cents for overtime.

The delicacies of the season, and when witness was liberated, the writer demanded $125 for it. To Mr. Dockrill.—The letter was written from Collins two days before he left, but she had no time to answer and handed it to McKinnon. Dockrill knew who it was on duty. She thought lots of notes were passed while all the guards were on duty. She named some of the prisoners who were making a bluff at ball play. The warden spoke to her about looking at the men out of the window and passing things through the wicket. Witness once mentioned to May what she had seen, and said she would mention it unless she wanted to be moan.

Benjamin Marshall, guard, being the next witness, was sworn. Filled the position for about six years. To Mr. Hussey.—Last witness served fifteen months; during that time he saw nothing wrong between the warden and Rose; they were not very friendly. The warden had the key of the women's ward, and was often in during the day. He saw the warden with May Evans in his arms on one occasion. Both were standing in the bath-room. Didn't know if they saw him, as he looked in passing, the door being open. It was last summer, when the lacrosse team was away East. Afterwards, a week perhaps, he saw them standing together talking in the female ward, in the lobby adjoining the bath-room, the office door being open then also. The warden was talking about hot-blooded people as he went out. He spoke to the man about the key. While the condemned Chinese man was in the jail, May had often asked him to send the governor. He asked her if it was not the warden she wanted, but she said no. He did not know if there was any wrong-doing. The women were all in the hospital ward when the condemned cell was occupied. Witness suggested to the warden that he give the key to his sister; this was about the time the condemned cell was occupied. An Indian had told him the head trusty had colluded with the warden about the key. While the warden about the key, he thought it would have been given up. He did not consider the warden entitled to the key when there was a matron. Witness said she had seen Gaynor after he (Marshall) became a guard. Mohr was said to have coined money in the jail. He had a disagreement with the prisoner, and the warden had ordered him to his post. This encouraged the prisoner. There was no discipline. On had got on well. Roberts and Mohr, two prisoners, had quarrelled, and he went to the warden to lock them both up. He did not write a report, though there was a book for the purpose. Since then he had made written reports which were ignored, for fighting. He produced a book for weeks he said it was not entered. He took no notice of the omission. When Fleming spoke of the key being made, the warden told him to let him know when it was finished. He asked Gaynor from the point where it was said he was good. He and a long talk with Webber, who seemed perturbed first when he caught Webber thought that witness could make use of information against the warden. He did not report the prisoner he caught coming out of the female ward because he was waiting to catch him with the key. Examination Continued.

"Could Not Sleep."

Sleeplessness marks the very climax of human suffering. It is only a step removed from insanity. When sleep no longer restores the exhausted nature, the struggle with disease cannot last long. The starting point of the nervous disorders which produce ill-health and sleeplessness, is generally a diseased condition of the woman's organs. Rest these organs to sound health and the appetite comes back, the day's work no longer wears, and sleep is sound and refreshing. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures diseases of the woman's organs. It stops the drains which weaken women; it heals the inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. It is a temperance medicine. "My health has been poor, for many years and I had great deal of medicine, but it did me no good," writes Mrs. Rose Kennedy, of Springfield, Mass. "I had no appetite and could not sleep. I wrote to Dr. Pierce and he kindly advised me to take his Favorite Prescription. I took five bottles of the Prescription and one bottle of the Golden Medical Discovery, and I feel like a new woman." Care sick headache by using Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

The New Queen Victoria Statue in Ottawa.

The new statue of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, executed by the Canadian sculptor, Hebert, falls a pretty figure on the west of the main building of Parliament Hill, Ottawa, which in turn commands a magnificent view of the Chaudiere falls and the Ottawa river for five or six miles up that stream. The figure of the Queen is draped, and will so remain till it is he hoisted in process of erection to call formally unveiled. But enough was seen of it while in process of erection to call forth very general admiration. The British lion, bear, and the allegorical figure with ornamental base are both of them worked out with good effect, and the only criticism heard is in regard to the pedestal, which does not meet with universal approval. It is understood that the Minister of Public Works proposes to take the advice of Mr. Hebert himself on this point. It is not as massive as some think is desirable to correspond with the statuary. It is understood that the unveiling will take place during the visit to the capital of His Royal Highness the Duke of Cornwall and York.

July 4th, already referred to, he came on duty at 11 p.m. He gave some cold water to Patsy, an Indian, who was not the liquor. There were nine cases of gin in a cell when he joined, and Webber was making a broad bluff, but he went out he investigated the cell, and found seven cases and a broken one stored. It was said to have entered the women's ward by a key he produced. It was filed down, so Fleming told him. A short adjournment was taken here to try how the key worked in the door. On resuming the examination examination was continued, but nothing important developed before the commission adjourned for luncheon. Resuming at 2:50, Marshall said he did not keep any journal. He did not converse with May Evans about the warden or jail matters generally. He had not talked with her about those matters. When she called him sometimes to send the warden, he would not always give the message, and she threatened to report him. He did not threaten to report her. On the 4th of July he received Turnbull, who was out of playing lacrosse. Turnbull took night duty for the summer months so as to play lacrosse. That was while he was at home in France. He knew nothing of the money matters of the women prisoners. He assisted in getting up a subscription to help Rose to return to her home in France. He discussed the matter first with the priest; was not sure if he consulted Mrs. Robson. He spoke to O'Connor and the warden. The women examined. The priest was tired of the life she had been living. He saw Louise Mascot coming in Saturdays and Sundays with groceries. She called to see Mrs. Robson's. She said she was out $125 for goods supplied to Rose. She said she begged the money on Dupont street, and she trusted Webber to pass it on to Blackie and others. She got two packets of Sweet Caporal cigarettes. This was like cognac with her coffee. He was a quartermaster who passed in the liquor. On the 4th of July she sent him down two for the brandy. She treated all the men, giving some to Fleming, and some to Blackie to pass to the others. The commission here adjourned to the delinquency of the government agent, deposed that the investigation arose from sworn charges made by Rose Gaynor McKenzie and Rex, Alice McCarly, and Blanche, complained to him. Rex complained of rough treatment of the prisoners and shortage of food. Last year he first heard of the reports of improper conduct to female prisoners. The girl, Rose Gaynor, was taken to his house, as Marshall, or the priest, suggested such a course to his wife, on the ground that the woman wished to lead a better life.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

The System is to be Installed Along the Labrador Coast.

St. John's, Aug. 2.—The Newfoundland legislative assembly closed its session this afternoon.

The Governor, Sir Cavendish Boyle in the course of his speech, announced that the Magoon system of wireless telegraphy would be installed along the Labrador coast at an early date. He also foreshadowed the great benefits to result to the colony from the adjustment of the long existing controversy between the government and Mr. Reid, the contractor, by the passage of the recent contract.

It is in the plans of the government to invite the Duke of Cornwall and York to open the naval reserve training ship, Catpays, if she arrives here before his coming.

ELECTRIC TRAINS.

Series of High Speed Trials Are to Be Made in Germany.

Washington, Aug. 2.—United States Consul-General Manson, at Berlin, has deemed it necessary to forward to the state department a correction of the very generally published statement to the effect that new electric trains have been running at the rate of 125 miles an hour between Berlin and Hamburg. Mr. Manson says that a series of high speed trials are to be made on an 18 miles line between Berlin and Jossen, aided by the German government, in August and September, which will attract the electricians of the world. The greatest electric house in Germany has built a special motor car which is run in competition with one made by one of the leading United States concerns for this special test.

WAR PROBABLE.

Conflicts seem imminent between Venezuela and Colombia.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The political situation in the neighboring republics of Venezuela and Colombia in South America, and the possibility of war between these two states is attracting considerable attention in diplomatic circles. Should war actually result, the authorities in each country would not only have to deal with foreign enemies, but also with their domestic foes, as each of the countries now has what practically amounts to a civil war on its hands.

Neither the Colombian nor the Venezuelan legations here has much direct information, and the cable reports are exceedingly conflicting.

The officials at the Colombia legation are at a loss to understand the report of President Castro's intention of sending law on the ground that his country is being invaded by Colombia. The revolution, headed by Dr. Galvarin, who crossed the Venezuelan border from Colombia, where he had made a refuge, is said to be in no sense an invasion by Colombians. Dr. Galvarin belonged to the party of Andrade, who was overthrown by Castro, and it is stated in diplomatic circles that he is simply heading a rebellion of Venezuelans against the latter's authority.

No definite information has been received here regarding the whereabouts of Gen. Uribe, who in his turn is heading a movement against the present government in Colombia from the Venezuelan side. The last news of him whereabouts was that he was at Maracaibo, and had not yet crossed into Colombia, where it was supposed he would attempt to effect a juncture with Narin, a noted guerrilla, who is still carrying on a vestige of the last revolution in the mountains of the central range of the Andes.

At the Colombian legation here, the movement headed by Uribe is not considered at all serious thus far.

A report, received here on July 26th last, gave news of a projected simultaneous invasion of Colombia from Venezuela, Ecuador and Nicaragua. Nothing has been heard of the movement since then.

A cablegram has been received at the state department from the United States consul at Colon, stating that if the present revolutionary troubles in that section become more aggravated, the traffic across the Isthmus will surely be interrupted. The United States government is bound by a treaty to keep this traffic open to the world. No request for a warship to be sent to the scene of trouble has been made.

Six Persons Thrown Into Lake by Capsizing of a Sail Boat.

Veterans of Fenian Raids Apply For Ontario Government Offer of Land.

Montreal, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Thomas Bulger, aged 55, shot and severely wounded Timothy Corbett, aged 45, last evening. Corbett is her brother-in-law, and is said to have attempted to enter her house by force, when the woman drew a revolver which was accidentally discharged and inflicted the wound. Corbett is at the general hospital in a critical condition. The woman gave herself up.

Fatal Result of Assault.
Edouard Beaux, a shoemaker, aged 45, is dead of injuries received on June 25th, in a saloon fight on Craig street. P. Meunier, accused of having assaulted Beaux, was arrested several weeks ago and was held to await the results of Beaux's injuries.

Libel Case.
J. T. Wilson, president of the Brotherhood of Trackmen, Jos. Lennon, of Agassiz, and A. E. Stout, of Arden, Ont., members of the local C. P. R. committee, were practically committed for trial by Judge Choquette this afternoon, upon a charge of criminal libel, preferred by R. C. Montgomery, assistant roadmaster of the C. P. R., at Ottawa. An adjournment was made for a few days when the formal commitment will be made.

Applications for Land.
Toronto, Aug. 2.—So far about 8,000 veterans of the Fenian raids of 1836 and 1870 have applied for the Ontario government's offer of a quarter section to each veteran or next of kin, and the rush of applications shows no signs of abating. As the grant, however, is only made to those who were actually in the field, 2,000 applications will be refused.

Strike Ended.
The brass founders, who have been on strike for the last two months, will return to work on Monday. The men struck for a uniform holiday, an advance in wages and recognition of their union. They have not, however, secured increased wages.

Narrow Escape.
Hamilton, Aug. 2.—Miss Bickle, Miss Grace Hull, Miss Louise Travers and Dr. Gaviller of this city, and Gerald Green and Miss Coverton, of Montreal, had a narrow escape from drowning in Lake Rosseau, Muskoka, on Tuesday. Dr. Gaviller took the party for a sail, and when out on the lake a mile from shore, and out of sight of any person on the islands, the boat capsized. Gaviller and Green kept the boat, which had turned bottom up, straight, and the young ladies of the party were enabled to cling to it. They were in the water for over half an hour before any sign of help came in sight. Finally they were picked up by the steamer Kenosha, the young ladies being almost exhausted.

PROTOCOL PREPARED.
And Will Probably Be Signed in Course of a Few Days.

Pekin, Aug. 2.—The protocol committee of the ministers of the powers here virtually finished the draft of the protocol and will submit the same for approval of the other ministers. All questions of principle have been settled and the protocol will be signed in the course of a few days, unless there should be some disagreement as to the phrasing. The word "irreconcilable" in the early stages of the negotiations. Should such a hitch occur the signing may be indefinitely delayed.

For cuts, wounds, rheumatism, stiff joints, burns, scalds, bites of insects, cramps, coughs, colds, Hayward's Yellow Oil will be found an excellent remedy.

ENJOYABLE OUTING.

Young People of Centennial Methodist Church Held "Trolley Party" Last Evening.

The young people of Centennial Methodist church last evening had a very enjoyable outing. The excursion took the nature of a "trolley party," three cars being secured from the B. C. Electric Railway Company by the Young People's Society, under whose auspices the outing took place. That there was a large attendance may be judged from the fact that the capacity of the conveyances was comfortably taxed.

The start was made at 7 o'clock, and the destination was Fisher's Point, on the Esquimalt line. Arriving there a large bonfire was lighted on the beach and games and amusements of various descriptions were kindly than many of the refreshments were then liberally provided, after which an impromptu programme was rendered. N. Shakespeare was the presiding genius, and among the numbers were instrumental selections by Messrs. J. Hollands, O. Auld and Pavcett. An address was also delivered by Rev. J. P. Hicks, and after three cheers for the Young People's Society and a parting hymn the start was made for home.

A WEASEL'S DEVOTION.
A pretty little story of the devotion of a weasel to her young is told in the August number of Cassell's Little Folks (which begins a new volume). The writer says: Although looked upon as voracious and destroyed accordingly, the weasel is a good mother, and probably treats her young ones more kindly than many of her human enemies—rats, mice, cats, etc. A weasel, carrying something in her mouth, was once seen to enter a hole in a tree. The observer, applying a lighted straw, soon smoked her out. She then darted towards a stone wall, near which she was attacked by a terrier, which speedily slew her. She left an eager victim behind the mouth of the hole in her teeth. Anxious to see what this was, the on-looker went forward, and found it was a baby weasel. The mother's nest in a baby close by had been ploughed up, and she had been searching for another home. As her youngster could not run, she carried it in her mouth rather than leave it to perish.

QUESTION OF SUGAR DUTIES.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, who recently visited in audience by the Czar on Wednesday next. The ambassador will remain here a fortnight, and will spend two weeks at Marienbaum; and will then return to Paris. He has not yet seen the finance minister, M. Dewostanne. It is considered that Count Cassini's presence in St. Petersburg will substantially change the situation respecting the sugar duties. It is understood that the ambassador is unable to throw light on the question whether Russia would recognize the decision if the United States Supreme court should decide against Russia. There is a disposition in several quarters here to hope for a settlement through a new commercial treaty.

HEARING COMPLETELY RESTORED.

Catarrh Caused the Deafness, but Japanese Catarrh Cure Cured the Catarrh, Alleviated All Inflammation and Restored the Hearing After Physicians in Toronto and Winnipeg Failed.

Mr. D. N. Spencer, 11 Colborne ave., Toronto, writes: "For over twelve years I have suffered from catarrh, which, in spite of doctoring with specialists in Toronto and Winnipeg, became worse, until finally my hearing became much affected. About a year ago I procured a sample of Japanese Catarrh Cure, afterwards used in all four bottles; since I have been completely free from catarrh, and my hearing has altogether returned. I can cheerfully and conscientiously recommend it." All druggists, 50 cents. Write for book on Catarrh and Deafness, free. Griffiths & Macpherson Co., Limited, 121 Church street, Toronto.

Swiss mountaineers call through their speaking trumpets at dusk, "Praise the Lord God." One herdsman starts the call, and his neighbors from every peak echo it. The sound is prolonged by reverberation from one mountain to another. After a short period, which is supposed to have been devoted to prayer, a herdsman calls, "Good-night." This, too, is repeated, and, as darkness falls, each retires to his hut. These calls may be heard for miles, and are resounded from the rocks for some minutes after the original call has died away.

Chinese Buy Lumber

Demands for the British Columbia Product in Preference to Other Varieties.

Coal Ship Puts Into Port With Cargo Heated—Liner Passes a Wreck.

One of the most interesting features of the lumber trade developing in recent weeks has been that of a demand for British Columbia timber. This use is for the construction of wharves, the lumber from this province, or at least a certain kind of it, being eminently adapted for the purpose. It is said to be the only variety that withstands the onslaught of the little worms that is so destructive to the timber exposed to the action of the water.

There is still considerable lumber from this province used in the building of railways and other public works in China. Eight ship loads have been dispatched from British Columbia in the six months of the year which have elapsed, and there are orders ahead for several more cargoes. As yet the demand from the Vladivostok has been supplied by Puget Sound mill men principally, the consignments from this province having so far been small and very irregular. The bulk of the exporting business which has been done has been in the direction of Australia, which country is always a large consumer of British Columbia lumber.

On the other hand Puget Sound shippers are exporting largely to the West Coast of South America, in addition to what they are sending across to Siberia.

SIGHTED A WRECK.

The Kosmos liner Anubis has arrived at San Francisco from Hamburg via Central American ports. On the River Platte the Anubis was caught in a gale, and for three days a storm raged that tested the sturdiness of the ship to the utmost. A quantity of wreckage was passed, and Capt. Behrmann expected to hear of a disaster at Valparaiso. Upon arriving at that port he learned of the abandonment of the five-masted French bark France, and later met her master. The France was bound from Newcastle-on-Tyne for Valparaiso with a cargo of coal and was caught in the same storm as the Anubis. Some of the spars were carried away and the vessel was blown on her beam ends. All the masts were cut away in an attempt to get her on an even keel, but it failed. The crew consequently abandoned the France and later was picked up by a passing steamer and taken to Montevideo. The France was last seen on May 13th in 33 degrees 22 minutes south, longitude 30 degrees 27 minutes west. She was one of the largest sailing vessels afloat, being 3,942 tons burden, 361 feet long, 48 feet 8 inches beam, and 25 feet 9 inches deep.

QUIET WATERFRONT.

Few craft are moving on the waterfront today, the wharves along the inner harbor being practically deserted with only the Largo Law discharging at the outer locks. Above the E. & N. railway bridge preparations are soon to be commenced for the removal of the old hulks which have decorated the shore line about the Turpel shipyard, and there is a possibility with the general clean-up some changes in the ownership of craft will occur. If the old barge Spratt's Ark, for instance, can be secured, it is stated that she will be entirely altered and her hull adapted to different service to that which it has been employed. The only vessel on the ways is the C. P. N. steamer Willapa which is in the Star yard receiving some repairs and being cleaned and painted.

CANNERY TENDER WRECKED.

Advised brought down on the steamer Cottage City to the Sound tell of the wrecking of the steamer Rustler on the rocks at Five Fingers. The Rustler attempted to go between two islands two miles below the site of the new grout and light-house. She struck the rocks and remained fast for several hours. The rover steamer Flossie was sent to her assistance.

Very curious were the effects of the lightning upon the bodies of two excursionists killed at Stratton. The coroner's inquest showed that on the chest of the deceased man, Frederick Charles Raines, was a distinct tracing of the form of the tree under which he was killed. In the case of the other, a little boy, it was shown that the lightning discharge entered his head and passed down through his body to the right leg, which was split. The jury returned a verdict killed by lightning.

The barbarous spectacle at the Front (France) bull ring has been forbidden by the minister of the interior. Donna Tancrada Mercedes, the heroine, was to have remained motionless in a white costume like that of John of Arc at the stake. In this staccato attitude the bull would have approached her, and, according to theory, would have turned and fled. Unfortunately in some instances the bull takes another and more sanguinary view of the matter.

LIGHT FROM A LUMINARY. The Nelson Tribune has been saying things which have been in the mind of the member for Nelson for some time. The evidence of these sayings is of considerable importance, as it indicates that the Premier of British Columbia may encounter such opposition in his efforts to strengthen his government, no matter which faction he endeavors to please, as will effectively quench his ambition to remain the ruler of a province.

to the disadvantage of government of, by, and for the people. Is it possible that our neighbors have not heard that the Tories have been out for years, and that a government of, for and by the people such as no United Stateser has any conception of has been managing our affairs for some time? We wonder whether the government of Great Britain in its anxiety to please and conciliate the United States will be ready to subscribe to the following document, and whether it considers it a friendly act on the part of some members of the present United States administration to subscribe thereto:

As Eric Temple in "Heartsease" and in the title role of "Darcy of the Guards," he has great roles, and has won success in other cities, the genuineness of which cannot be questioned. Not a few writers have said that if they, Mr. Miller evidently does not fear to have a supporting company that will put his own ability to the test, for he is surrounded by a company that has rarely been equalled in point of ability and experience in the association with a star.

Walter Thompson, who lately returned from South Africa, where he had been engaged for years as a railway contractor, has imported three valuable horses. The horses, which are Suffolk Punches, include two stallions and a mare, and were purchased by Mr. Thompson from Pratt, of Woodbridge, Suffolk, England, one of the best breeders of this favorite breed of draught horses. It is the intention of the proprietor to devote his attention to breeding horses upon his farm in Saanich. The importation of such stock will have a beneficial effect upon the stock in that district, as the importations are beautiful specimens of their breed.

With perfect weather, ideal surroundings, a good programme and a very large attendance at the inaugural concert of the series to be given by the Fifth Regiment band at Beacon Hill park last evening has gone on record as a most congenial and successful event. The grounds were illuminated by Chinese lanterns strung about the lake in the trees, the programme from which added much to the enchantment and picturesqueness of the scene. Bandmaster Finn selected a most pleasing programme of music for the occasion, which was faithfully rendered by his musically company, the solos of the deserving being particularly choice and deserving of the liberal applause they received.

Far West Lodge, No. 1, K. of P., entertained their brethren of the Victoria Lodge, No. 17, in their hall at the conclusion of the regular business of the meeting. A programme was given, including songs by Bros. Tyson, Nathan, Allan, Rendall, Crook and others. A well spread table gave the Knights an opportunity to show their prowess in this particular line. At a meeting held after the social part of the programme it was decided to reorganize Uniform Rank No. 2, of Victoria. Officers were elected as follows: Sir Knight Captain, E. W. Hall; Sir Knight First Lieutenant, J. Hilton; Sir Knight Second Lieutenant, Thomas E. Gold; Sir Knight Recorder, A. W. von Rhein. Drilling will commence at once, so as to enable the Rank to take a division to San Francisco which will compare favorably with any taking part at that place. The Rank will meet on Monday evenings.

A meeting of the Illumination committee in connection with the reception of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York was supposed to take place yesterday afternoon, but it didn't. There was no quorum, Ald. Hall and Secretary Moresby being present. This faithful couple waited patiently, and at the sound of every footfall in the corridor their hopes were only to be blasted when the expected members did not appear. After some time Ald. Hall took the chair, in order to bring about a perfectly legitimate adjournment. As an ordinary member he moved that they adjourn; this was seconded by his "sub-conscious self," as some of the students of physics research would put it; the motion was presented by Ald. Hall as presiding officer and carried unanimously. It was duly recorded by the secretary, and the alderman and scribe arose.

Deceased was a native of Broadwater, Cumberland, England, and came from the Old Country to Canada about 10 years ago. In his 72 years of age, and during his 10 years' residence here, he has won many friends, who will extend their sympathy to his family in their bereavement. He leaves four daughters, Mrs. H. C. Small, of Oregon; Mrs. C. J. Wardrope, of Winnipeg; Miss M. C. Lancaster, and Miss S. E. Lancaster, both of whom live here. He also leaves three sons to mourn his loss, namely, John and Henry C. A Tribute to Canada

London Spectator Says the Dominion is Most Akin to Britain.

Advocates Canadian Reserve and Navy, and Representation at Imperial Councils.

When a statesman whose reputation has been made in hard debates and the turmoil of party warfare leaves his work behind him for a moment and allows some generous emotion to color his words, we listen more readily than to any professional politician. In his Chamberlain's speech at the dinner to celebrate Dominion Day there was this charm of contrast with his other work, an oratory and a passion which was not his in his rectorial address on "Patriotism" and some few other speeches, but which is studiously kept out of the routine of his public life. The subject was great enough to inspire a man of far less imagination and historic sense than the Colonial Secretary. The filial feeling of the colonies in the war has been made a truism of politics, readily admitted by every party; and it requires a conscious effort to realize what exactly is meant by this feeling of kinship. Our first feeling, when we learned the temper of

was delight and surprise; now we are beginning to take it for granted, and it is well to be reminded by Mr. Chamberlain's eloquent words of the true kinship of this loyalty. The colonies, thank heaven, have not been made to mean less terms for most Englishmen. We see their already nations, mature and self-conscious for all their youth, following their own ideals and civilizations, but inseparably linked to us by blood and tradition. At home in England we can have no sense of geographical possession. We are a great nation, but our land is a mere incident in our power. But in the colonies the wide ambitions are founded literally and directly with wide territories; there is room to move and breathe and expand; and they can see, growing up in their sight, palpable evidence of their power. He must be a dull man indeed whose spirit is not fired by the consideration of the oldest, most populous, and most mature of our colonies. To ourselves Canada has always seemed something apart from the others, with more of the old European culture, more long-descended, and more of the same ways more akin to ourselves. The stock of her population was drawn from our best. The hardy, thrifty settler who went out to clear the forest in a universe away from the treasure-hunter and the speculator. In her French population she has a curious, interesting and difficult class, who, sprung from the same stock, have harmoniously within her borders. Bands of Scottish emigrants, from the '45 to the present day, have gone west to Manitoba and Alberta, and to the new Badenochs and Lochabers in a country which has much of the character of their own. As General Innes Hamilton said at the same dinner, the Gordons and the Royal Canadians who fought side by side at Paardeberg were nearly all of the same blood, not half brothers. She has never been made the reservoir for the surplusage of other nations, the wandering alien has not seriously troubled her, and her settlers have been picked men of our own blood. Canada has a land, too, of immense extent and endless variety. Surely in no country in the world is there so great a choice of scenes, from the apple orchards of Nova Scotia, the populous cities of the St. Lawrence, and the fields of Labrador to the prairies of the Northwest and the canyons of the Pacific. All or nearly all is well watered, and no part is without some form of agriculture. Her climate is moderate, in few places inimical to life and labor, and well suited to a strong and healthy race. It is a platitude that the nature of a country and its climate has great share in forming the character of a people. To men whose root stock is Saxon, or at least Northern, some vigor and energy are necessary for the maintenance of true moral and physical manhood. Canada is essentially a country of the larger air, where men can still face the old primeval forests, and where the air is fresh and invigorating, and withal so beautiful that it can readily inspire that romantic patriotism which is one of the most precious assets of a nation. In the mountains and the Canadian contingents, with their air-cure brightness of eye, which comes from looking over vast prospects of country, were more than volunteers or militia stock-riders. They were to the observant man the visible sign of a masculine and unwaried nation.

A STRAIGHT CASE AGAIN THIS TIME.

Two Letters Which Prove the Permanency of Cures By Dodd's Kidney Pills.

San Derrochers Cured of Diabetes in 1898—Had It For Over Five Years—His Recent Letter Proves That His Cure Still Holds Good.

Quebec, Aug. 2. (Special.)—San Derrochers, of the Fortress City, was cured of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills in 1898. His case is well known here, it having been published in the papers at the time, and a great deal of attention was drawn to Dodd's Kidney Pills on his account.

Diabetes, however, is known to be an incurable disease, and many of the more sceptical of Quebec citizens expressed doubt as to the permanency of the cure. These doubts may now be set at rest. Mr. Derrochers himself attests that in three years he has had no sign of Diabetes' return.

In May 28, 1898, Mr. San Derrochers published the following letter to the Quebec papers: "I have been a victim to Diabetes for over five years, with terrible pains around my kidneys. My feet were always cold, and my thirst could not be quenched, no matter what I drank. I tried every other remedy, but received no help. I purchased one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and found immediate relief. I have now finished five boxes, and can say I am perfectly cured."

Now to clear away all possible doubt that Mr. Derrochers was not cured, to show beyond question that Dodd's Kidney Pills did not merely relieve him for the time, but actually cured him of Diabetes, and cured him to stay cured, we publish his letter of April 4th, 1901: "Dear Sirs, My cure of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills has been permanent. I have not been troubled with a sign of Diabetes since my cure three years ago."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure all diseases of the kidneys, and the troubles arising from weak action of the kidneys. They are used throughout the world.

A Turbine Steamer

Description of Vessel Now Running on the Firth of Clyde.

Advantages Over the Ordinary Marine Engine—Economy in Coal Consumption.

"It is only now and again that the world is startled by men like Watt and Stephenson and other distinguished inventors, but I think we may safely class Mr. Parsons alongside these men." Such was the pregnant utterance of Archibald Denny, of Dumbarton, after the launch on board the turbine steamer King Edward on her trial run from Fairlie to Campbelltown, when he was proposing the health of Mr. Parsons, the inventor of the steam turbine. The remark was received with the heartiest enthusiasm by the company, which included experts on engineering and shipbuilding from all parts of the United Kingdom. Time alone will prove the soundness of Mr. Denny's dictum, and none better than he is qualified nor in a more authoritative position to make such a bold statement.

But what is a turbine steamer? Every one seems to be asking each other this question. There is an impression in the minds of some people that it is a great long fish-shaped vessel fitted with a huge metal tail for driving the craft ahead. That there may be more in the idea than appears on the surface I have no doubt, but it does not apply to a turbine steamer, which, after all, is similar in appearance to thousands of the ordinary class between Glasgow and other ports. Unlike the usual pleasure steamer she has no paddles, but she has propellers which are driven, not by engines as we know them on board either a screw or paddle steamer, but by turbines, perfectly in accordance with the new departure in steam-boat propulsion.

It should be pointed out that the King Edward is not the first vessel of this kind, but the first turbine steamer to be supplied with this method of propulsion. Hitherto torpedo-boat destroyers have been the only types of vessels to which the turbine has been applied. The Turbinia, built in 1894, was the pioneer steamer, and it proved the practicability of the system. Later the torpedo-boat destroyers Viper and Cobra were supplied with turbines, and both demonstrated that high speed could be united with economy of coal consumption. The Viper accomplished 36 knots, and at 31 knots—the guaranteed speed—the consumption of coal was 28 lbs. per I.H.P., a fraction less than the guaranteed amount. Since then Mr. Parsons and his colleagues have been sparing neither time nor money in further perfecting the new method, which they are now convinced can be applied with successful results to pleasure steamers, cross-channel steamers, Atlantic liners of the greatest type, protected cruisers, and even battleships.

THE TURBINE STEAMER KING EDWARD VII.

At any rate it is now believed by many eminent engineers that the day of ordinary steamboat propulsion is past or is rapidly passing, and that some new method will require to be adopted if greater speed is to be accomplished. Very few, however, have daring enough to hazard a definite opinion as to what the new motive power will be, but Mr. Parsons comes forward and gives a practical demonstration of how he would solve the problem; for after all is said and done, the great epoch-making developments in naval architecture were initiated in the United Kingdom and carried out by those who have now become our rivals.

Very few, however, have daring enough to hazard a definite opinion as to what the new motive power will be, but Mr. Parsons comes forward and gives a practical demonstration of how he would solve the problem; for after all is said and done, the great epoch-making developments in naval architecture were initiated in the United Kingdom and carried out by those who have now become our rivals.

At any rate it is now believed by many eminent engineers that the day of ordinary steamboat propulsion is past or is rapidly passing, and that some new method will require to be adopted if greater speed is to be accomplished. Increasing The Navy

Some Particulars of the New Vessels Which Are to Be Built.

Will Carry Latest Guns and Most Approved Ammunition—Dock Changes.

A correspondent writing to the San Francisco Bulletin from London, says: In the Commons Mr. Arnold-Forster explained the naval programme that the government had made up and went to some extent into the naval conditions of the Empire. He said the government had decided that the needs of the navy demanded that during the coming year there be constructed three battleships of a new and superior class, to be known as King Edward, Dominion and Commonwealth respectively, and to cost $6,500,000 each; the construction of six armored cruisers of about the type of the new cruiser California, already contracted for by the United States, at a cost of $3,500,000 each, and the construction of ten thirty-knot destroyers.

The great new battleships were the first point on which Mr. Arnold-Forster dwelt. In view of the progress in armament made by other nations, some felt, he said, that changes should be made in the direction of larger offensive and defensive power. The admiralty intended to take a step in advance and produce a ship superior to any yet produced. These three battleships will be approximately 16,500 tons displacement. They will have a length some twenty feet greater than that of the Formidable class, and will have a normal horsepower of 15,000, and it is hoped they will realize on their trial of eight hours' continuous steaming a speed of eighteen and a half knots.

Their protection is similar to that of the London class, with prize armor belt nine inches thick from the low protection deck to a small height above the water line, and thence from the main deck a thickness of eight inches. This will be continued for the whole length between the barbette and the heavy guns. A peculiar feature will be introduced for the first time in the British navy. The plan of placing each of the six-inch guns in separate casemates will be abandoned, and the ten six-inch guns will be inclosed in a battery with seven-inch armor, which will be divided by traverses to diminish the effect of any shell which may penetrate. There will also be a new feature in the armament—two four-twelve-inch guns, which form the normal armament of the first-class battleships in the world will be added four 9.2 guns of very great power. They will be very well protected armament, similarly to those of the Cressy class. By a novel arrangement they will be protected by heavy six-inch to seven-inch armor. Two will have a normal range of 10,000 yards, and two an anti-aircraft range. These ships will get their forward fire by two six-inch, and aft there will be a fire of the same formidable character. Mr. Arnold-Forster went on to speak of the introduction of heavier armament. "These ships will compare most favorably with any ships that are being built for any European power," he said. "The King Edward, Dominion and Commonwealth, will commemorate the services rendered to the Empire by two great branches of the race. I hope these ships will add to the fame and lustre of the navy," said the Secretary of the Admiralty.

tested, or it would make the torpedo more dangerous to ourselves than to the enemy." This testing is a long process; it has been carried out with unremitting zeal, and already a very large number of vessels are supplied with the gro-scope.

Coming to the six docks which the Admiralty hopes will shortly be available for battleships and large cruisers in the Mediterranean, he said that there will be a great improvement in the method of protecting and docking large ships in the Mediterranean. Thanks to the generosity of a private individual, the hospital ship Maine would be devoted to the Mediterranean. The new notes provide for a large equipment for hospital ships in times of war. As to repairing ships, the Vulcan is doing valuable service in the Mediterranean and the Hecla is to be recommissioned. The Admiralty recognizes the importance of coaling vessels, and have taken £20,000 for the purchase and construction of coaling ships. In addition, there are seven regular chartered coaling ships running for the service of the fleet.

Finally Mr. Arnold-Forster announced that a new distilling apparatus will be added to every station; wireless telegraph installations have been supplied to a large number of ships; large storage houses at Malta and Gibraltar will supply refrigerated meat to the navy. Steps have been taken to supply the hospital depot in the Mediterranean. The arrears in shipbuilding have never been caught up. There has been congestion in shipbuilding, but every effort is being made to overcome the arrears.

An amendment for a reduction, moved by Mr. Dillon, having been defeated, the House adjourned at 1.30 to 52, and progress was reported.

POWLEY'S LIQUIFIED OZONE. Before very long you will find Powley's Liquefied Ozone an established stand-by in every household; the best and most perfect antiseptic, cleansing, healing, useful in a hundred little ways; a preventive of disease and a cure for it. For example:

For a burn, cut or bruise, wet the part thoroughly in Ozone, clear; takes the soreness away like magic, heals by "first intention" promptly and perfectly. For a cold sore in the mouth, touch it with a bit of absorbent cotton wet in Ozone; that's all last of your canker. For a sore throat, gargle with dilute Ozone at 10 minute intervals; sore throat gone in the morning. For a sting or poisonous insect bite, wet with Ozone, clear; you will be surprised at the quick relief. For croup, diphtheritic sore throat, and the like, use Ozone as a spray or in a swab; it cures like magic. For a headache, which usually yields quickly to a few doses of Powley's Liquefied Ozone taken twenty minutes apart.

Powley's Liquefied Ozone is oxygen in a stable form; liquid; it does what you would naturally expect oxygen to do; antiseptic, stimulating, healing. This letter evidences the many uses it has:

I must congratulate you, being so fortunate as to possess such a wonderful remedy for humanity's ills. I think it is the acme of perfection. Your remedy seems to cure every disease in the body. It goes directly to the weak place and fixes it up. I was used up generally—felt exhausted on the first exertion. Some has removed every vestige of the trouble. I now feel splendid and give thanks to the great Creator. I trust you will have success as your reward. I am, your obedient servant, (Signed) JOHN N. GILLION, Markham, Ont.

A MINISTER'S GOOD WORK. "I had a severe attack of bilious colic, got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power, of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody. I gave him one of the bottles of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No,' went home and brought him my bottle and went over to see him the next morning. To Inspect The Traps

Party of Legislators and Cannery Representatives Started for Blaine This Morning.

Fish-Taking Methods of Americans to Be Viewed in Full Operation.

At the invitation of the Cannery Association a party of M. P. Ss., accompanied by a deputation representing the organization, left for Blaine on the steamer St. Clair this morning. In the party are Col. Prior, M. P., D. M. Eberts, Attorney-General; Messrs. Helmecken and McPhillips, M. P. Ss.; D. R. Ker, of B. P. Rither & Co., and a couple of representatives from the Fraser River Cannery Association.

It had been intended that other representatives in the provincial house should accompany the excursion, but for various reasons they were unable to accept the invitation extended to them. The St. Clair left the inner wharf at 8.30 o'clock and, it is expected, will not return until to-morrow evening.

The object of the expedition is the inspection of the salmon fishing traps in use by the Americans at Blaine, and which have in the past, and in fact are at present, one of the biggest grievances which the Canadian fishermen have to contend with. There has been considerable discussion of late on the advisability of British Columbia cannerymen resorting to the same method of catching fish, and it is for the purpose of acquainting the legislators with the working of the same that the cannerymen decided on organizing the little excursion which set out this morning. Whether the cannerymen intend asking for legislation permitting the usage of the traps on this side of the boundary line, however, the Times has no definite information, but it is suggested on the waterfront that this is one of the possible sequences of the trip.

One who has long been in touch with the fishing industry of the province said this morning that there was no reason why the British Columbia fishermen should not use the traps on the Canadian side. He pointed out that he had just received a letter from Blaine in which it was stated that great quantities of fish were being caught there. A few nights ago the letter mentioned that fish were being offered for sale at five cents apiece on the beach, while those taken to the Fraser were bringing 12 1/2 cents a fish.

As for the traps, he believed that they were no more destructive on fish than the gill net, for with the trap all fish not required can be liberated, and in fact, but with the gill net, he said, the salmon once caught can never gain its freedom again.

What he would suggest would be the trapping of fish in the Straits, say from San Juan to Beachy Bay on the Island coast, this being the route of all the fish to the Fraser. A strong tidal current sets in along the Island and with it come the fish. Afterwards many cross to the American side, but with traps in the location mentioned he thought that Canadians would have the key of the salmon situation to themselves.

DISMANTLED STEAMERS SOLD.

Steamer Victorian reached Seattle from Skagway yesterday with $300,000 in gold dust. She reports that the three dismantled steamer hulks lying in Skagway harbor have been sold by the railway company and will be towed away within a few days.

The scows are all that is left of the once famous Stikine river flyers, McConnell, Ogilvie and Dawson. The machinery was taken out of them at Skagway after they were towed up from Wrangell, the upper work was destroyed and the rebuilt steamers now running on the Upper Yukon were remained. As the hulks are Canadian bottoms they cannot be put to use on the American side of the line without paying duty. Considerable anxiety was felt in the North over the Gold Star, which left Dawson heavily loaded for the Koyukuk over six weeks ago. Her managers expected her to return to Dawson within thirty days and as she is now some three weeks overdue it is feared some accident may have befallen the little craft. Her cargo was valued at $30,000 and was entirely from the store of Dawson merchants. The Koyukuk is a shallow stream, navigable only by steamers of very light draft, and as the Gold Star draws three feet or more when loaded, it may be that she has stuck on a bar before reaching her destination.

STEAMING TO SEATTLE.

On her way down from Comox yesterday the steamer Joan was in company for a time with the large steam collier Williamette, which has just been floated from the rocks on Village Island. The big vessel was proceeding to the Sound under her own steam, supported on either side by large tugs which had been fastened to the sides. She should have reached Seattle, her destination, late last night or

MARINE NOTES.

Steamer Moana, the new Canadian-Australian liner, is due here from the South Seas on Monday. She is expected two days ahead of her schedule time, which is probably due to the fact that she is a faster vessel than the one she succeeds. Steamer Charmer left Vancouver at 1.25. She did not connect with the Eastern train.

NEWS FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

Letter Received From Former President, Now Near Johannesburg With Constabulary—Some Incidents.

Detective Thos. Palmer, of this city, has received a letter from Thos. Johnson, who enlisted here for the South Africa constabulary some time ago. The letter was written at Mullin's Drift, about fifty miles above Johannesburg, and was dated June 6th. The writer reports both himself and Sergeant Llewellyn, formerly of the Victoria police force, in the best of health. His company, he writes, come in contact with the wily Boers every day, but the elusive enemy never gives the Britishers a chance to get at them.

The life of the constabulary soldier certainly has its share of the dangers. The writer illustrates this by explaining that one may run quietly along the valley in fancied security, when suddenly a fusillade opens all around him, and if he is not converted into a sieve his escape is miraculous. Sergeant Llewellyn and Corporal Johnson have been doing outpost duty, and in this capacity have had quite a number of experiences more or less exciting, but always interesting. The camp is protected by a chain of forts on all sides about a mile and a half distant. About twenty men are stationed at each.

Some time ago Sergeant Llewellyn observed a detachment of Boers, stealthily making for his post, the object being palpably to carry it en masse. He waited until they came within three hundred yards, when his men let fly. The enemy fled, and their flight had all the absurdity of a farce comedy, furnishing merriment for the Tommies, who can discern the comic side in everything. Corporal Johnson says that they expect to be at their present quarters for six months, after which they will return to the Gold Reef City, where they will remain three or four months. After their term of service has expired they may return to this city. The writer speaks most favorably of Sergeant Llewellyn, whom he characterizes as a man of action and resources.

Sergeant Walker has also received a letter from Corporal Johnson, while Constable Blackstock has heard from his brother, who is in South Africa.

Application Adjourned

Question of Granting Bail to Striking Fishermen to Be Heard Wednesday.

Hearing Postponed by Consent to Enable Necessary Examination of Papers.

The application of J. H. Senkler, of Vancouver, in the matter of the release of the striking fishermen in New Westminster jail, was renewed this morning before Mr. Justice Walkom. A number of affidavits were produced by Mr. Senkler which will have to be considered by Deputy Attorney-General McLean. Mr. Justice Walkom also wished to look into depositions which were placed in his hands this morning. For this reason an adjournment was granted by consent until Wednesday next at 10.30 a.m.

Application for bail was also made this morning by Mr. Senkler for Rogers and Desjardins, who are also confined in jail upon the charge of marooning Japs on Bowen Island. Copies of the necessary papers in connection with the application had not been received by the counsel representing them. The adjournment will afford an opportunity to get these in.

In court this morning Mr. Senkler, upon the request of Deputy Attorney-General McLean, stated what he would admit in the case. He would admit that there was a strike among the white fishermen to arrive at terms with the canneries; that there were about 3,000 of them; that the white fishermen had a union which ordered the strike, and that the accused were strikers. He would not admit, however, that the accused were members of the union, as he had no knowledge to that effect.

It was also stated in explanation that Mr. Senkler did not wish to convey the idea that Mr. Justice Martin had given formal permission for a second application. The learned judge had, when it was stated that this application would be made, said that he could take such a course if he desired.

KILLED BY INDIANS.

Steamer Humboldt Brings News of the Death of Five Men. (Associated Press.)
Seattle Aug. 3.—Steamer Humboldt arrived from Skagway to-day, with $500,000 in Klondike gold. The Newport reached Junau on July 30th and reported that five men had been killed by the Indians about 200 miles west from Valdez Island. No particulars could be learned.

A SHELTER AT LAST.

It is understood that one will be erected by Leora People at Osborn: Bay Shortly.
There is now some definite assurance that before much time has elapsed a smelter will be running in full blast on this Island. This smelter question has been more or less agitated for many months, but has not materialized, and there has been no little speculation regarding the locality which will be given distinction by the erection of the first establishment of this sort.

It has been said that Lady Smith will be the site of one; Ucluelet has been mentioned as the site of the contemplated erection of another, while on several occasions reliable sources have given out the information that the much needed institution will be inaugurated in the vicinity of Mt. Sicker, for the handling of the ores which are being mined so extensively there.

The shipment of ore to the American side for treatment has always been the local enterprise, especially when it comes to the treatment of the ores which are being mined so extensively there. Dependence on extraneous industries in connection with this country's pre-eminent industry has not afforded a favorable commentary on local enterprise, especially when it amounts to being absolutely dependent on outside establishments for the treatment of this Island's ores.

This, it is understood, will shortly be a thing of the past. A few days ago some well known capitalists arrived in this city for the purpose of interviewing Henry Craft about the erection of a smelter in the vicinity of Mt. Sicker. The interview was evidently satisfactory, as plans were discussed for the construction of an establishment which will have a capacity of 150 tons per day. The site decided upon was Osborn Bay, and the operations were to commence immediately. In fact it is anticipated that the concern will be running before the expiration of the year. That it will be kept busy is certain, as the present output of the Leora, some 60 tons per day, will be handled, while the output will probably be increased to 100 tons. Even with this percentage of ore being treated for the Leora, there will be capacity for 50 tons per day of ore from the other mines.

Eloquent Address

Delivered Recently at San Francisco By Rev. Elliott S. Rowe.

A Stirring Appeal to His Audience On Behalf of Society.

The appended eloquent address was delivered by Rev. Elliott S. Rowe, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist church, at the final session of the Epworth League recently held in San Francisco. The other speaker of the evening was Bishop Watson, of Denver, Colorado. At this meeting there were eighteen thousand present, and the scene was one not easily forgotten. The address, which occupied between twenty and thirty minutes in delivery, follows:

The convention of 1901 is now almost a completed undertaking. The thought, the toil, and the hospitable impulses of the Leaguers of San Francisco have borne fruit—a most abundant and luscious fruitage it has been—and in a few hours the guests, refreshed and strengthened, will joyfully depart. But the convention of 1901 will not die to-night. Unless we have misjudged its vitality, it will survive the century whose beginning it marks, and unless many years express its energy in the beneficent activities of a continent of churches.

Neither did the convention of 1901 begin last Thursday. Its promoters know how many months have passed since they convened their first meeting for organization; but theirs was not the first. The initial meeting, which formed the nucleus of this great gathering of Methodists was held when this land was a trackless waste—before a sail had ever been reflected in the waters of the bay, and before the ancestors of most of us had planned foot upon the shores of this Western Continent. The initial meeting was held a century ago, when the University men met together to form the Holy Club. In that meeting was the germ from which, under the culture of the Holy Ghost, has been evolved the conditions represented in this great assembly.

A meeting of five, representing none but those present, seems compared with a conference of thousands representing millions, but we could make no prouder boast than to proclaim our Methodism a lineal descendant of the Holy Club and worthy of its ancestor. And no more fitting prayer could pass our lips than that we may be faithful stewards of our inheritance, that we may appreciate its value, realize its extent, understand what is required of us to administer it that it may reach our children's hands unimpaired.

Present blessings represent past toil and suffering. Nothing of worth that is now come without self-denying effort. Every institution was purchased at infinite cost, and the spirit that informs the beneficent organizations of our time first breathed in men who made priceless contribution of blood and treasure to the cause of human progress. They paid their instalment of the purchase price of freedom long before the time of its appearing, and when hearts less stout and faith less robust could have been unequal to the sacrifice.

What lavish expenditure did our fathers make on our behalf to purchase for us the liberties we now enjoy? Ten thousand fields soaked with patriot blood! Acres upon acres of the earth's surface followed by the dead bodies of martyrs. Men of light and letters in senate, church and school—men and women unknown to fame, of exalted purity, illustrious faith and dauntless courage, poured their treasure of life and soul and substance into the enterprise of humanity, and in the blessings of civilization we draw the dividends of their priceless investments.

No good is available to any man that has not cost sacrifices by other men. Trace the genealogy of any item in the inventory of our liberty, and its cradle will be found in the grave of some ancient martyr. The comforts of his life were the price of our freedom—things because his father denied himself many things. We have life with liberty because our forefathers refused to live without liberty. They sowed blood and we reap freedom.

This is the immutable law of progress—every step costs—the price is life, and the product is life—the price is costly but the benefit is priceless. It is the life for the higher; the life of a vegetable is paid and a man lives. The life of a day for the life of a century; the author of the first months of this masterpiece and buys immortality. The life of one, a Luther, a Knox, a Wesley, a Lincoln, for the enlarged lives of millions. The life of the greatest of God's creation for the emancipation of a World. This came our heritage, and thus must come our progress until the last, the victory has been won and there will be need of service and suffering.

I judge from the spirit of this gathering that, while we glory in the past and appreciate the heritage we now enjoy, the possibilities of the future lead to heights now visible only to the eye of faith and include accomplishments conceivable only by the invincible optimism of God-constructed hearts. If such visions are ours, and we long for their realization, and if the history of progress has not been read in vain, then we know that what we are called to work and to sacrifice. And happy are we if we understand that more to be valued by us than our rich inheritance is the power to enhance it by our toil. We become the legitimate heirs of the past only when we invest ourselves in the present for the enrichment of the future.

We need to very clearly perceive that our possessions will diminish unless we increase them. The heritage of liberty, of just laws, of high moral sentiment, cannot be held unless it is cherished. Wrap it up in the napkin of timid conservatism or of ignoble contentment, and when the day of reckoning comes there will be found nothing, but the memory of a glorious but departed and childless past.

Then, too, we do well to remember that the higher our privileges the more sensitive are they to neglect and the more culpable is our negligence. When a load has been dragged high up the mountain-side, it is more easily dislodged and results more disastrous that at the beginning of the ascent. But the workers are recompensed for their extra care and expenditure of strength by the enlarged vision, the purer air and the nearer summit.

A very precious burden, high up on the mountainside, is placed in our keeping. There are more leaguers yet to be gathered—a thousand obstacles to be overcome—the summit is reached. Forces gigantic and numberless, hostile to our progress, are arrayed against us. Voices of discouragement, of contempt and anger, reach our ears. What shall we do? There are but two courses: To stand still is impossible. What shall we do? Let go? Or, by the strength of God, mount higher?

It is easy to let go of faith; fools can doubt of reverence, idiots can sneer; of courage, cowards are plentiful; and of righteousness, of purity, and of love. These virtues do not wait a second command to depart, and he who feels himself emboldened by the sight of them will shortly be free of his burden. It is not easy to mount. Back along the road by which humanity has travelled there are evidences in plenty of the pathfulness of the journey, and we would be fools to expect and covet to desire that our stage of the journey should be along paths of ease. Let us not be guilty of that folly of that cowardice. While the evil trinity of mammonism, sensualism and militarism, the worship of wealth, the love of pleasure and the enthronement of physical forces—while these three continue to exert their present influence upon the world's life, we have need of all our faith and courage.

For a time these false gods are found within the church. Honage is rendered them even by those whose professions include profound convictions as to the supremacy of moral good and the sufficiency of spiritual forces. Even in the church we tabulate our dollars, and catalogue our plant, in columns sufficient to prompt our suspicion that the evidences of success—the essential element of power and the sure guarantee of progress. Against this dangerous fallacy—the fallacy that in wealth and numbers, in excellence of equipment and perfection of organization, we have inflexible evidence of success—against such fallacy we need to contend day and night. We have to insist that material prosperity does not necessarily insure the supremacy of moral good and that being blessed and developed there is no real success. Wealth is not all-powerful. Numbers, irrespective of the qualities of the individuals, do insure strength. Organization, however complete, does not generate life, and equipment will not also accomplish the desired results. An army of weaklings is as weak as it is large; and no excellence of organization or equipment, and no skill of leadership will redeem it from utter uselessness.

You may by the expenditure of money build a large factory, install the most improved machinery, fill it with men associated in the most approved order from manager to sweeper; assemble the finest quality of the necessary raw material; prepare your designs, and at last build your fires. Will you have success? That depends on the quality of your men. With men competent, industrious and loyal to your interests, your showrooms will soon be filled with the products of their skill, and your bank account with the proceeds of your sales. But with men lacking these qualities you will soon have but depreciated plant, a depleted treasury, an empty show-room, and a mountain of scrap. And this is the truth which we must recognize—that results depend on the quality of the individual workers; when that is right, then the means of material resources and numbers, organization and equipment begin to count, and count enormously, and too much thought and effort cannot be devoted to their perfecting.

But the supreme question is the personal question—the human factor is the deciding factor, and therefore the most valuable contribution a man can make is his best, deepest self. He cannot give more, and less will not meet his obligation. Our purpose is to save men; men cannot be saved by machinery; argument will not move them; lurid pictures of the dangers and disasters of sin will not turn their feet—they must be attracted by the benevolence of a convincing life, and taught that such heroism is the fruit of Christian love which comes through faith in Jesus Christ and the possible possession of every human being.

And we must save men if we would preserve society and keep the race on the upward path. The future of this continent is in the hands of the masses. We hear much of the concentration of wealth, and of the power with which it invests the hands of a few—against the power to inflate or depress the markets, to shape the decrees of congress or parliament; with these men, you tell me, rests the future of the people of this continent—that money rules, and that if it can be won for the cause of religion, then a future of glorious progress is assured; and that without it, the cause must fail. But that is not true. Do you think that the sentiment that emancipated the negro slaves, that held black men to be infinitely more precious than gold dollars and that human bodies and souls were not merchandise—do you think that sentiment is dead in the Anglo-Saxon race? If it is alive, will it permit millions of money to dictate the terms of life to millions of free men? If it is dead, then day and night must God's people work for its revival. And if it is alive—and it is—then by the devotion of our best energies of mind and soul we must seek to direct it by paths of peace to the accomplishment of its God-appointed mission. The heart of the problem is in the hearts of the people, and there must it be solved. There is the arena in which the issue must be decided—the greatest issue ever presented to any age. Every interest is involved in it—government, commerce, education, religion—the very foundations of society, are all concerned, and this issue is to turn upon the answer which the new century will give to Christ's appeal for human love and loyalty.

As the masses come to feel their strength and realize its relation to the forces which oppose them, is there to be a fury of strife and desolation—rivers of blood and oceans of tears—a holocaust of hate—a riot of irresponsible strength that will fling back the race a century's journey—is that the sort of festival with which Demos will celebrate his coming of age? It may be—the Devil's schoolmasters are busy. Lies a hundred times refuted by reason and history but living still—the old lie that wheat can come of the sowing of tares—that right can come from wrong and bless the wrongdoer—that disease is brought by the darkening clouds of the cause—the old lies are being used, and Demos listens. Meanwhile, the march of events leaves heel-marks in his body, and the very body begins to decay, while its growing strength whisks of power, and the lie itself mingles the conscience—and one day, and the day may not be far off if the process continues unchecked, the strength now poured into the utilities of life will, in an hour of sudden fury, smash the products of a century.

But are the honorable aspirations of intelligent freemen to be thus switched from their legitimate line of operation, and made to serve the ends of Hell? Shall the giant arm of labor—the instrument of our marvelous material prosperity—shall it be forever held in semi-slavery? Or shall it be turned to suicidal destructiveness? Or, shall its bonds be dissolved in the genial warmth of brotherly love, and if it be freed to swing in loyal service, the complete circle of an emancipated manhood? The first cannot be; the second need not be; and, if the church is faithful to its trust, the third will be.

To that end we must draw near to the heart of God, open our hearts to be filled with the Father's passion for humanity; we shall then easily find the way to men's hearts, and will be able and willing to meet and defeat the busy agents of evil.

Near to God and close to men—there alone we can learn what we need to know and teach what we ought to impart. There is one position in which power is vested; away from that, we spend our strength in vain. Sometimes we long for the vantage ground of the pulpit, or the senate, or editorial chair; and, if our hearts remain with the people, such prominence will increase our power. But if, in mounting to such elevation, we forget God or draw away from the people, then at every step our power diminishes.

If we are, or if we should become, too fastidious to touch the social leper—or too loath to enter into the homely joys and sorrows of the common people—or too eloquent to spend ourselves upon untutored ears—then, surely, we have leaped little of Christ. To us His words have been empty sounds, His acts meaningless motions. We have looked at Calvary with blind eyes, and our hearts have missed its meaning and its message.

This, then, is the situation: A glorious day—the child of strenuous centuries—and the promise of brighter days to follow—shadowed by the darkening clouds of threatened storms. Leaguers, would you have the clouds dispersed? Then carry to the altar of sacrifice your best—your all—your living selves. The fire from Heaven will fall and there will be light. The last shadow will hurry to its cave and God's golden light will glorify the earth with the precious harvest of righteousness and peace and love.

A Native Indian Colony

(NO. V.)
In December, 1871, Mr. Duncan writing to the Missionary Society, says: "The spiritual part of my work I, of course, took up and carried on as usual; but the temporal or secular part being so multifarious, was very perplexing at first. The constable corps, who had kept vigilant watch over the morals of the settlement during my absence, pressed me early to examine their doings, and readjusted the cases which the council had settled pro tem; but I thought it prudent to postpone this kind of work and take up what was more in harmony with the joyfulness of the season; hence we had a series of marriages (thirteen in all), and several meetings, at which I unfolded my new plans, and urged all to exert renewed energy and diligence in our new start. I then began arranging work for a number of men, and set about sixty on."

It was necessary to keep pace with the general moral and mental progress of the settlers, and furnish them with the comforts and conveniences of modern civilization, to improve the dwellings, so it was decided to pull down all the old houses and erect new ones. The new town was laid out in lots 40x120 feet, on each to be erected a double house. As the new dwellings were to be substantial and commodious, and somewhat beyond their means, Mr. Duncan pledged himself to assist them in lumber to the amount of $100 for each double house. A new church, seating 1,200 people, a town hall, dispensary, reading room, market house, blacksmith, carpenter, cooper and tin shops, work-sheds and a soap factory were built. A sea wall was constructed to protect the village, and in order to carry out the proposed buildings it was necessary to erect a water-power saw mill. And thus prosperity continued. The public improvements were largely the result of the profits accruing from the schooner, the store and the trading expeditions of the villagers—assisted by the contributions of friends of the Mission and Mr. Duncan's private funds. As time passed on, one trade and industry after another was added, and the people were kept busy and happy.

But the native missionaries, who were approved by Mr. Duncan, were zealous Christian workers; the hunters and fishermen, in mingling with the people of other villages, told them of the changes wrought by the "new life"; and the trading parties, who traveled far inland or voyaged along the coast in their canoes, each did his mission work. "Nor was it in their words alone that they gave evidence. These men, who had formerly been a terror to the whole coast, and only tolerated with suspicion, were, to the contrary, now mild and peaceful." What had wrought this change?
Some time after a visit to the Mission tribe, by the Chilkats, a fierce tribe living about six hundred miles distant on the Alaskan coast, a chief and several head men of the Chilkat tribe, ventured to pay to Metlakahla, of which they had heard much wonderful stories. Before landing they arrayed themselves, as they usually did, in all their magnificent and barbaric finery, intending to impress Mr. Duncan and his people with their greatness and importance. "As they approached in solemn state Mr. Duncan was notified of their coming, and he voyaged to greet them in his Sunday best, because the savages were in gorgeous trappings, and would despise him if he were poorly dressed. He had on his common work clothes, and was in the midst of some important work which he could not drop at the moment."

The visitors were cordially received by the Metlakahlas, "as they leaped out of their superb canoes and kissed the beach. They were struck with utter amazement at the sight of the buildings, the manner in which the people were clothed, and the general appearance of thrift on every hand. They were impatient to see the great master who had wrought all those wonders." Mr. Duncan had not dressed up—at all times he sought to discourage the assumption of pomp and foolish display, which he found "so wretched in these naturally valorious people. When the Chilkats were escorted to him, and he was pointed out as the benefactor, they looked over and beyond him, saying that they could not see him; but when this modest, plainly clad little man greeted them and his personality was made clear, they preserved their countenances in stolid vigor, to maintain their own great dignity, never uttering a word, save the compliments of a formal greeting."

They manifested great astonishment, however, and it appeared that they suspected some deception was being practiced upon them. "His own conduct by Mr. Duncan, to his house, with great courtesy. He gave them the customary seats of honor for distinguished guests; yet, they continued to look at him in utter silence for some time, until at length they broke out by saying: 'Surely you cannot be the man! Why, we expected to see a great and powerful giant, gifted in magic, with enormous eyes perous for the Mission. The people were comfortable and contented. They had their enjoyments as well as their daily occupation. Mr. Duncan did not believe in "all work and no play." It will be interesting to give an account of the Christmas proceedings, as described by the Bishop of Athabasca, who visited Metlakahla in 1877-8. "The festivities of the season commenced here on Christmas Eve, he writes, when a party of about twenty-five of the older school girls were invited to meet us at tea. After tea, we were all entertained by Mr. Duncan, with the exhibition of a galvanic battery and other amusements. This party having dispersed to their homes in good time, at a later hour came together the singers, who were appointed to sing Christmas Carols during the night along the street, led by the schoolmaster. After their singing they returned to supper at the Mission before retiring to rest."

"On Christmas morning the first sight which greeted us was that of the constables, who were lengthening to its full height the flagstaff on the watch house. Soon all the village street was gaily dressed with flags. The constables then marched about the village to shake hands and make 'Christmas peace,' with all those whom they had been called to interfere with in the course of the year. At 11 o'clock the church bell rang, and the large church was thronged with a well dressed and attentive congregation. "After service all the villagers, to the number of about six hundred, had to come and pass through the Mission house to shake hands with all the inmates. In doing this they so crowded the vestibule that the boards actually gave way beneath them, but the ground being only about two feet below, no injury resulted. After all the shaking of hands was over the villagers returned to their own private entertainments and most of us at the Mission enjoyed a quiet Christmas evening together; but Mr. Duncan entertained at tea a party of the chiefs and principal persons of the village, whom the Archdeacon did not join, from inability to converse in the Tsimshian tongue."

"The day after Christmas was a gay one. The constables, twenty-five in number, paraded and exercised on the green with banners and music, and about fifty volunteers, in neat white uniforms, with drums and fifes and banners flying, went through creditable evolutions and exercises. All the strangers who had come from the neighboring villages, to spend Christmas at Metlakahla were escorted by Mr. Duncan in the Mission hall, and, after a suitable address, all of them received presents of soap, apples, sugar, tobacco, etc. In the evening the usual week-day service was held in the school room, always crowded. The following day all the children were assembled by Mr. Duncan at his house; first the girls and then the boys, about two hundred in all; and after being amused by him, were treated to sugar plums and apples, and each one received some article of clothing (cap or cape, etc.), so as to be sent away to their homes rejoicing."

"Next day, all the men in the village, about 300, were assembled in the market house to be addressed by Mr. Duncan. After giving them the best advice he could, their Christmas presents were distributed to them in the presence of the Mission party. These consisted of one-half pound of sugar and one apple to each one, with copy-book and pencil or tobacco for the older men. The caretaker of the Mission house next day kindly entertained the widows of the village, about sixty in number, to a substantial dinner. It was a pleasure to see even the old and decrepit able to sit at table and enjoy their meal, and it gave me comfort in the idea of the renovating influence of Christmas blessings, to think in what dark and murderous heathenism these aged widows had been reared when young. After dinner Mr. Duncan brought them to his hall to listen to an address, so that they might not return home without words of Gospel truth and comfort."

"The morning, being Sunday, was marked by usual services. These consisted, first, of morning Sunday school at half past nine, at which about 200 are present, both children and adults, males and females being in separate buildings. All the elder scholars learn and repeat a text, both in English and Tsimshian, and have it explained to them, and they are able to use their English Bibles intelligently for this purpose. At eleven is morning service in church, attended at Christmas time by 700 to 800. Hymns are sung both in English and Tsimshian, and heartily joined in by the congregation. This being the last Sunday in the year, the service was made a specially devotional one to seek mercy for the offences of the past twelve months."

"After morning service the adults met again in Sunday school to learn in English and Tsimshian the text of the sermon, and have it explained to them by the native Sunday school teachers, who are prepared for this duty at a meeting with Mr. Duncan on Saturday evening. It is very interesting to see about 200 adults gathered together in the three schools at mid-day, entirely in the hands of native teachers, with English Bibles in their hands, pouring intelligently over the text, and following out again the

A MERCHANT TAILOR

Robert Custer, 64 York St., Hamilton, Heartily Endorses Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Another witness to the many thousands already enrolled on the side of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, is Robert Custer, the well known merchant tailor of 64 York street, Hamilton. All over Canada Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have a reputation unequalled by any other dyspepsia remedy. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the most successful treatment for Dyspepsia before the public at the present day, and have been since their first coming on the market, several years ago.

It is remarkable how many people in this country seem to have troubles of digestion, and it is no less remarkable to note the astonishing number who have ended their stomach troubles by the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are an absolutely harmless compound of pepsin, diphysin and other natural ingredients mixed in sugar. But they act so perfectly on the food in the stomach, they do their work so thoroughly, that the actual process of digestion is gone through, utterly independent of the stomach.

This rational, sensible way of treating Dyspepsia insures the nourishment of the body and all the blessings of well digested food, while it at the same time allows the tired, over-worked stomach the rest it must have to grow strong and healthy once more. People who have used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the people who have the warmest praise for them.

"I was troubled for three years," writes Mr. Robert Custer, of Hamilton, "with Dyspepsia and Heartburn, and could get no relief. I was persuaded to try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and as long as I live I'll be thankful that I did so. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets proved a blessing to me, and I endorse them with all my heart."
